

Abstract of the Disclosure

Multiple potential termination events for a given option (such as a stock option) are identified. In a preferred approach, these termination events each effect a potentially different corresponding ex-severance value as regards valuation of the option itself. Such multiple severance risks are then reflected in a model that can be used to provide substantially risk-neutral valuation of the option.